Dear Friends,

The merger that created Hope Center for Children is now six years old, and we continue achieving milestone after milestone. The year 2018 has meant progress, rejuvenation, and growth for HCFC. Volunteers breathed new life into The Lindsay House at the Ellen Hines Smith Campus, the new home for our transitional living program. Triple P facilitators served almost 1,000 caregivers, teachers, and parents, making sure our community has the tools that really work when they are struggling with a difficult parenting choice. Youth in both Faucette House and Anchor House achieved academic improvement across the board, in spite of the poor education outcomes that many youth in foster care experience when they move from school to school. Finally, we located the new home for our community-based therapy, and we couldn't be more excited about helping children and their caregivers work through their trauma to resiliency in the next year!

When you advocate for HCFC, you are standing up for children and families. You are protecting a child who has never felt safe. You are supporting a family so that they are able to meet their children's challenging behaviors or basic needs. You are giving hope.

Thank you for standing with us this year,

Margaret J. Nowell

TLP Success!

James* grew up knowing that his family culture dictated independence at age 18. He turned 18 midway through his senior year of high school, and his parents allowed him to stay at home until he graduated. Immediately following graduation, he was on his own.

*The Lindsay House.
TLP residence opened Dec. 2018.*

James found Hope Center for Children's Transitional Living Program, and with their help and guidance he set some goals for himself. He was determined to further his education, and after several months of working full-time, he applied to a local college. James was accepted for the fall semester and found himself even more motivated to save money to prepare for his enrollment.

The TLP Family Teachers encouraged James to remain in the program for the fall semester, rather than taking additional loans to cover on-campus housing. He continued working while completing his first semester and maintained a strong GPA. Family Teachers also encouraged a re-connection between James and his mother.

This January, James decided that he was ready for on-campus, independent living. The Family Teachers and volunteers supplied him with necessities for his dorm, and his mother, with whom he had grown closer, helped him move into his dorm. This celebration of education, healthy relationships, and financial responsibility will ensure a self-sufficient start for James!
